Rebel Depredations

We find the following extract, says the Louisville Journal, from a letter written by a gentleman of Barboursville, Kr., to a friend in Lexington in the Observer and Reporter of yesterday. The writer is a perfeetly reliable man, and occupies a position of trust and responsibility in the place of his residence. It confirms fully all the previous reports in regard to the infamous depredations by the rebel marauders under Zoza-COFFER. The letter is dated Mt. Vernon, Rockeastle county, Oct. 3d, to which place the writer had been forced to take refuge: The infernal rebels have destroyed everything we had in the world. They have even taken every stitch of clothing except what I have on my back. They steal everything they can get their hands upon, even to bed clothing, ladies clothing, and ladies jewelry. Their depredations put to shame the most heathen nation and the most savage mode of warfare. I have not time to tell you of the various enermities they have perpetrated, but | ing the national cause at heart. the worst that you can conceive would not do them justice.

Axy one who is an attentive and close ob server of the progress of events, and who reads carefully the most reliable news pubfished throughout the country, cannot fail to draw a rather satisfactory conclusion as to the condition of affairs on the Potomic.

It is quite natural that the people of the west should grow impatient and grumble perhaps, that whole battalions of western troops should have been sent to Washington when there was such an apparent need of troops in Missouri and Kentucky. Yet those | What soldier can fight in a cause that is diswho take the sober second thought, in view of recent developments, cannot fail to admit that a great advantage has been gained, by what has appeared to many as unwise and for existence, and calling for troops to defend impolitic. Within the last week a most im portant and significant change has taken place on the Potomac.

Then would come the stereotypof the Capital," and the country for a half was transpiring the young Hero of the West, Gen. McClellan, was quietly, but with vast energy and consummate skill, carrying out his gigantic conceptions. Legion after legion poured into the camps around Washington,been demoralized and disorganized at the disastrous field of Bull's Run, was thoroughly reorganized. The most rigid system of on Pennsylvania Avenue, at Willard's or at and Corporals were alike ordered to their respective camps, and as brigades were organized and drilled they were quietly transferred from the north to the south side of the! Potomac. Ten thousand in a single nigh were thus quietly crossed over, and their deserted camps occupied by fresh troops before morning-to undergo a like discipline and in their turn a like transfer. In one night within a week past forty-eight regiments were thus sent into Virginia. While the people were still in doubt and almost dispair,-marmuring that Munson's Hill had been allowed to full into possession of the rebels, au . to be fortified within sight of the north was electrified with the announcement that Gen. McCLELLAN had quietly taken day with other gradual advances, each as quietly taken and each of like significance. Thus while all was apparent inactivity, the commanding General had completed the organization and the thorough discipline of the largest and best appointed army of modern ti nes, and had, by an almost imperceptible movement, forced the enemy to retire far beyond their former position, and the rebels now find themselves faced by an army that they feel no disposition to assail.

These movements are very happily delineated by the correspondent of the Philadelphi. Press, under date of the 9th inst. The correspondent who is no other than Cal Forver himself, save:

There is a gradual and steady advance of our army upon the receding lines of the army of the enemy, south of the Potomac. Regiment after regiment, and occasionally whole brigades, strike their tents and advance a mile or two towards the enemy, and there commence cutting down the trees and strengthening their positions. Where the pickets of the rebels stood three days ago, our men were at work vesterday. There is a general and a successful crowding of the enemy off. As an illustration of the manner in which this is, at least in some cases done, I will state an incident in my experience yesterday. I was riding beyond Falls Church, and met two Pennsylvania soldiers, who can tioned me to proceed no further, as our outer pickets had just informed them that the rebeiscouts were within half a mile of as, and would probably fire upon as from the thicket if an opportunity occurred. I turned to rerods when I met a full regiment advancing, each man with a musket in one hand and an axe in the other. MILITARY ITEMS .- We clip the following from the Indianapols Journal of Saturday; large men in it, there are very few under ter (14) of section fire (5) in township thirteen (15) morth of range seven (5) west, commining forty acres are not yet uniformed. The two flanking Mr. Epiron: The unsettled state of public are not Net uniformed. The two flanking companies were armed at Richmond, with Enfield rifles, and the remainder will get their arms at Louisville, to which place they will proceed in a day or two. The regimental band is led by Mr. Bonum. The 3ith regiment. Col. Steele, which arrived here only Thursday moon, left last evening, on the Jeffersonville railroad, for Louisville. This regiment arrived here in uniform, but unarmed. They will receive their arms at Louisville.

The Laport Weely Union shows by figures. that just 1100 men have been enlisted in that county for the war, and claims that some 200 others have enlisted in regiments organized outside of the county. The editor doubts whether any other county in the State, in proportion to its population, has filmished more men and money than Laporte.

The Newcastle Courier says Henry county has done well, having seven companies in the field, and about 200 men who have enlisted in other corps, and yet the ground has not been gone over. Spirited appeals in the right quarter will vet find material for soldiers in Henry county.

Col. Rose is to leave this city this morning as bearer of dispatches from Governor Morton to Mr. Cameron, Secretary of War, now at St. Louis. The Secretary and Adjutant General Thomas will probably return to Washington via Indianapolis, and remain here a short time, the Secretary as guest of Dr. Bobbs, his brother-in-law, Lient, Col. Heffren, of the 13th Indiana regiment, is at home, having arrived at Salem on Friday of last week, sorely afflicted with rheumatism. He is to address his fel low citizens this afternoon at the Court House in response to letters and personal invitations. Col. Sullivan is now in this city, consequently the regiment is under the command of Major Foster.

Orin Aborn, of Warren county, has been appointed Assistant Surgeon of the 40th regiment, Col. Wilson.

The following admirable excoriation of The 36th regiment, Col, Grose, arrived from John G. Davis, we find in the Shelbyville Richmond yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Volunteer, a Democratic paper. From the and marched to camp. This regiment averability displayed, and the initials at the end, ages well. While there are not many very on and the fatal errors that are thoughtlessly or wickedly promulgated by some as Democratic sentiment and policy, seem to justify me as a Democrat in a frank and candid critteism of the late speech of Hon. John G. Davis, at Franklin, Indiana, to a Demo-cratic meeting. While there may be much in the speech to approve, there is still more condemn. I emphatically condemn the speech so far as it purports to declare Dem-ocratic policy, and will give such reasons as ought to satisfy even those who can not rise in this great crisis above the level of selfinterests or party passion; but reasons concan rise to the exalted stand point of a lofty

Mr. Davis complains that Republicans receive his speeches with impatience and with threats. I shall be very much surprised if Democrats don't receive them in the same way when they get to understand Mr. Davis' meaning. "Peace" is a very charm-
